This four-year programme combines study of the language and culture of the German-speaking countries with a wide range of history modules offered by UCL’s School of Slavonic & East European Studies (SSEES).

Key information

Programme starts
September 2019

Location
London, Bloomsbury

Degree benefits

- Studying German at UCL provides access to broad subject areas, an innovative approach to learning, and a rich tradition of research.
- Academic staff are prominent in their fields and include acknowledged experts on medieval comedy, modern German literature and film, Austrian literature, German history, linguistics and psychology.
- Students play an active role in the department, organising an annual German play and hosting high-profile events. Recent examples have included a summit on the future of Anglo-German relations.
- Resources within ten minutes' walk include the British Library, Senate House Library, the Institute for Modern Languages Research, the German Historical Institute and the Institute of Historical Research.

Degree structure

In each year of your degree you will take a number of individual modules, normally valued at 15 or 30 credits, adding up to a total of 120 credits for the year. Modules are assessed in the academic year in which they are taken. The balance of compulsory and optional modules varies from programme to programme and year to year. A 30-credit module is considered equivalent to 15 credits in the European Credit Transfer System (ECTS).

Years one and two are essentially 'contextual', providing you with a broad overview and a methodological framework for your studies. Modules can be divided into the following broad areas:

- Language - discussion and essay-writing, reading comprehension, translation, grammar
- Literature and literary theory - authors, themes, textual criticism
- Cultural Studies - interdisciplinary analysis, diverse forms of representation
- Film - history, theory and analysis of film
- History/politics - German and Austrian politics, and history and social and political theory
- Linguistics - linguistic theory, history of the language, sociolinguistics, political discourse

You will also take SELCS interdepartmental modules focusing on literature, film, history and linguistics from outside your subject areas. This will enable you to focus on broad cultural movements, issues and approaches from an interdisciplinary perspective, drawing on the full range of specialisms within the school.

You will spend your third year abroad in a German-speaking country: at a university, as an English language assistant within a school, or on an approved work placement. In your final year you will choose from a range of advanced options, allowing you to specialise in your own areas of interest.

While a significant number of our graduates choose to remain in the UK, others spend at least part of their working lives based elsewhere, often in German-speaking countries. Recent graduates of German-related programmes have been very successful in gaining employment with companies such as Deutsche Bank, Google, the Wall Street Journal and with organisations such as the British Council.

First career destinations of recent graduates (2013-2015) of this programme include:
/// Full-time student, MA/MLitt in German and Comparative Literature Universität Bonn (University of Bonn)

Your application

Application for admission should be made through UCAS (the Universities and Colleges Admissions Service). Applicants currently at school or college will be provided with advice on the process; however, applicants who have left school or who are based outside the United Kingdom may obtain information directly from UCAS.

In your application we will be looking for evidence of your aptitude for language learning. We will hope to discover how you became interested in history and in German language, literature, culture or society, what you are doing to further your interests, and why you wish to study these subjects at degree level.

If your application demonstrates that your academic ability and motivation make you well-suited to our degree and you receive an offer, then we shall invite you to a Post Offer Open Day, where you will be able to experience the sort of teaching we offer and life in SELCS.

Your learning

Teaching is delivered primarily through small seminar groups, often including individual and group presentations and small-group exercises. Lectures are less frequent, and are used to convey information which can then be discussed in small-group teaching.

Assessment

The programme is examined in a variety of ways: timed examinations, assessed coursework, oral presentations and examinations, and take-home papers.

Your career

Thanks to a combination of intellectual training, artfulness and vocational skills, our graduates find employment in many areas of business, commerce, journalism, and law, as well as in the public sector (especially, but not exclusively, in education and culture).
Entry requirements

A LEVELS
Standard Offer: AAB. History required, foreign language preferred.

Contextual Offer: BBB. History required, foreign language preferred.

CONTEXTUAL OFFERS – ACCESS UCL SCHEME
As part of our commitment to increasing participation from underrepresented groups, students may be eligible for a contextual offer as part of the Access UCL scheme. For more information see www.ucl.ac.uk/prospectus

OTHER QUALIFICATIONS
UCL considers a wide range of UK and international qualifications for entry into its undergraduate programmes. Full details are given at: www.ucl.ac.uk/otherquals

UNDERGRADUATE PREPARATORY CERTIFICATES (International foundation courses)
UCL Undergraduate Preparatory Certificates (UPCs) are intensive one-year foundation courses for international students of high academic potential who are aiming to gain access to undergraduate degree programmes at UCL and other top UK universities.

Typical UPC students will be high achievers in a 12-year school system which does not meet the standard required for direct entry to UCL.

For more information see: www.ucl.ac.uk/upc.

Tuition Fees
The fees indicated are for undergraduate entry in the 2019/20 academic year. The UK/EU fees shown are for the first year of the programme at UCL only. Fees for future years may be subject to an inflationary increase. The Overseas fees shown are the fees that will be charged to 2019/20 entrants for each year of study on the programme, unless otherwise indicated below.

// UK & EU: £9,250 (2019/20)
// Overseas: £19,970 (2019/20)

Full details of UCL’s tuition fees, tuition fee policy and potential increases to fees can be found on the UCL Students website.

Additional costs
If you are concerned by potential additional costs for books, equipment, etc. on this programme, please get in touch with the relevant departmental contact (details given on this page).

Funding
Various funding options are available, including student loans, scholarships and bursaries. UK students whose household income falls below a certain level may also be eligible for a non-repayable bursary or for certain scholarships. Please see the Fees and funding pages for more details.
