This four-year programme offers the opportunity to develop expertise in two ancient languages simultaneously, focusing on Latin in year two and the final year. The curriculum is the same as that of the Latin with Greek BA, with an additional opportunity to spend year three at an approved university abroad.

Key information

Programme starts
September 2019

Location
London, Bloomsbury

Degree benefits

- UCL is ranked in the top three universities in the UK for Classics by the Guardian University Guide 2018.
- You will have access to an unparalleled range of options, from Roman Love Poetry to Greek Palaeography, from Ancient Greek Religion to Roman Epic.
- UCL has excellent library facilities, and is ideally situated close to world-renowned resources such as the British Museum, the British Library, and the Institute of Classical Studies.
- The lively student-run Classical Society organises an annual Classics play (a Greek or Latin drama in translation) shown at the nearby Bloomsbury Theatre, as well as other events.

Degree structure

In each year of your degree you will take a number of individual modules, normally valued at 15 or 30 credits, adding up to a total of 120 credits for the year. Modules are assessed in the academic year in which they are taken. The balance of compulsory and optional modules varies from programme to programme and year to year. A 30-credit module is considered equivalent to 15 credits in the European Credit Transfer System (ECTS).

The main emphasis of the programme is on the study of Latin and Greek texts in the original language. In your first, second and final year you will take a total of 4.0 credits. The choice of optional modules is very wide, but the language element follows a set pattern.

You must take at least 1.0 credit of Latin-based modules and at least 1.0 credit of Greek-based modules in your first year, and can then concentrate on Latin-based modules in your second and final years.

In addition, there are some compulsory modules in the first and second years involving texts in translation.

Your learning
You will be taught through lectures, seminars and small-group work. Some sessions involve direct study of artefacts, including access to the collections of the British Museum.

Assessment
Most modules combine both continuous assessment and end-of-year written examinations, although a few modules are assessed solely by one or other of these methods.

Your career
Knowledge of languages such as Latin and Greek will help you to develop mental agility and versatility, equipping you with the ability (amongst other things) to learn modern languages with comparative ease, opening up a wider range of possibilities in the future.

The Latin with Greek with Study Abroad BA is a rigorous and broad-ranging degree which qualifies you for a remarkably wide variety of jobs. The Classical Society hosts regular talks from former students which may help guide you in your future career choices.

The first cohort of students admitted to the Latin with Greek with Study Abroad BA is due to graduate in 2020. Therefore, information about career destinations for students on this programme is not yet available. Please see first destinations of recent graduates (2014-2015) from Greek & Latin programmes at UCL for a selection of representative careers.

Your application
Application for admission should be made through UCAS (the Universities and Colleges Admissions Service). Applicants currently at school or college will be provided with advice on the process; however, applicants who have left school or who are based outside the United Kingdom may obtain information directly from UCAS.

Entry to the degree is competitive so it is important you highlight your interest in and passion for the subject in your application. In addition to meeting the academic standards stated, we look for dedication and self-motivation, good communication skills and a real enthusiasm for your chosen area of study.

Each application is carefully assessed. Those candidates being considered for an offer will be invited to an applicant open day, which will include a lunch with staff and current students where you can discuss the degree programme, living in London and studying at UCL, and take a tour of the campus.
