Crime Mapping (SECU0005)

Description

This module will equip students with the theoretical and practical knowledge of crime mapping. It will cover principles that are specific to the analysis of geographical information and provide students with foundational GIS skills.

Particular attention will be paid to the strengths and weaknesses of different types of mapping techniques and cartographic skills.

At the end of the module students should be able to competently generate a range of crime maps and understand the benefits and limitations of doing so.
