Linguistics with a specialisation in Phonology

The Linguistics MA with a specialisation in Phonology is a research-oriented programme designed for students looking for concentrated study in phonology, with a focus on theoretically driven empirical research. Students will use typological comparison, data collection, experimental methods, or modelling techniques and will receive extensive training in research methods and the scholarly presentation of ideas.

Degree summary

Students gain knowledge and understanding of current research in phonology and are prepared for independent research. On completion of the programme, they will be able to formulate appropriate research questions, find and evaluate relevant literature, develop and test new hypotheses, and produce cogent, structured and professionally presented reports.

- The UCL Division of Psychology & Language Sciences undertakes world-leading research and teaching in mind, behaviour and language.

- Our work attracts staff and students from around the world. Together they create an outstanding and vibrant environment, taking advantage of cutting-edge resources such as a behavioural neuroscience laboratory, a centre for brain imaging, and extensive laboratories for research in speech and language, perception, and cognition.

- Our world-class research is characterised by a tight integration of theoretical and experimental work spanning the full width of the linguistic enterprise and forms the bedrock of the department’s eminent reputation which is also reflected in other markers of excellence such as its editorial involvement with top journals in the field.

The teaching and assessment of this programme is strongly research-oriented. It is delivered through a combination of lectures, small-group teaching and a virtual learning environment. Some modules also involve workshops or practical classes. Assessment is through take-home and unseen examination, essays, presentations, assignments and the dissertation.

Degree structure

Mode: Full-time: 1 year; Part-time: 2 years

Location: London, Bloomsbury

Students undertake modules to the value of 180 credits. The programme consists of five pathway modules (75 credits), three optional modules (45 credits) and a dissertation/report (60 credits).

Please note that the list of modules given here is indicative. This information is published a long time in advance of enrolment and module content and availability is subject to change.

PATHWAY MODULES

Students select three from the list below:

- Intermediate Phonetics and Phonology A
- Intermediate Phonetics and Phonology B
- Advanced Phonology Theory A
- Advanced Phonology Theory B
- In conjunction with the Programme Director, students select two from a list of 9 modules which includes the following:
  - Phonetic Theory
  - Studies in Syntax
  - Morphology

OPTIONAL MODULES

A further three modules are selected, either from the list of non-compulsory core modules above or from the list of optional modules below:

- Advanced Semantic Theory
- Advanced Semantic Theory B
- Animal Communication and the Human Language
- Communication and Human Language
- Interfaces
- Issues in Pragmatics
- Language Acquisition
- Neurolinguistics
- Pragmatic Theory
- Semantic-Pragmatic Development
- Semantics Research Seminar
- Sociolinguistics
- Stuttering
- The Linguistics of Sign Languages

Students may also take any statistical training outside the department. Further details are available at www.ucl.ac.uk/pals/current-students/masters/linguistics-options-pgt.

DISSERTATION/REPORT

All students undertake an independent research project which culminates in a dissertation of 10,000 words.
Your career

Although the degree can be an end in itself, this advanced programme is an excellent preparation for independent doctoral research in phonology. Graduates from our specialised Master’s programmes in linguistics have a very strong track record of securing funded doctoral studentships and have in recent years gone on to research at UCL, MIT, Cambridge, University of Massachusetts in Amherst, and the Universitat Autonoma de Barcelona.

Employability

This Linguistics MA equips graduates with the necessary skills to carry out research in the subject of phonology.
Entry requirements

Normally a minimum of an upper second-class Bachelor’s degree from a UK university or an overseas qualification of an equivalent standard is required.

English language proficiency level

If your education has not been conducted in the English language, you will be expected to demonstrate evidence of an adequate level of English proficiency.

The level of English language proficiency for this programme is: Good.

Information about the evidence required, acceptable qualifications and test providers is provided at:
www.ucl.ac.uk/graduate/english-requirements

Your application

Students are advised to apply as early as possible due to competition for places. Those applying for scholarship funding (particularly overseas applicants) should take note of application deadlines.

When we assess your application we would like to learn:
// why you want to study Linguistics with a specialisation in Phonology at graduate level
// why you want to study Linguistics with a specialisation in Phonology at UCL
// what particularly attracts you to the chosen programme
// how your academic and professional background meets the demands of this rigorous programme
// where you would like to go professionally with your degree

Together with essential academic requirements, the personal statement is your opportunity to illustrate whether your reasons for applying to this programme match what the programme will deliver.

There is an application processing fee for this programme of £75 for online applications and £100 for paper applications. Further information can be found at: www.ucl.ac.uk/prospective-students/graduate/taught/application.
